

To: [REDACTED]
From: pablohernandez12345@guapolawfirm.org
Sent: Fri 2/27/2026 6:41:32 PM

Dear, [REDACTED]

I saw your message and I'm sorry for your intense distress. I recognize this is a stressful time for you and family members. I hope you know that me and my team are taking your concerns seriously and will do everything we can to help you in this case. I am writing to follow up on a few important matters as we continue preparing for the upcoming proceedings.

The first thing I'd like to discuss with you is whether there are any specific personal items, property, or even people apart of this case you would like to focus on getting custody over. If there are, please let me and my team know and if possible provide a detailed list including descriptions and if possible values, and any proof of ownership or purchase history would be extremely helpful to my team and would greatly help. The more information you provide the more effectively me and my team can negotiate or advocate for these items.

Next I would like to discuss gathering any evidence for this case. Evidence will be critical to strengthening our position. Please review your records and send us any materials that may support your claims or clarify disputed issues. This may include, but is not limited to: Text messages, emails, or written communications financial records, receipts, invoices, or proof of payment, photographs or videos, social media posts, witness names and contact information, any prior agreements, written or verbal (with dates and context), and records of relevant incidents or timelines of events. If possible please provide context as it can be just as important as the evidence.

I would also like to mention that I do indeed know the [REDACTED] who is reviewing the case. [REDACTED] [REDACTED] and I do have a quite personal relationship with each other and this in itself puts us in a great situation and can give us a lot of benefits. Please do not bring this up with anyone as it could jeopardize the case.

If you have questions, need clarification, or simply want to discuss concerns, do not hesitate to reach out to me or our office. We are here to guide you through each step of this process.

Thank you for your trust in our firm. We will continue working diligently on your behalf.

From, Pablo Guapo Hernandez
Guapo Law Firm